Plastic Ocean

EMILY PENN

Environmentalist and Sailor

Emily Penn is an architecture graduate from the University of Cambridge and an ocean advocate, skipper, inspiring public speaker and advisor on issues relating to our oceans, shifting mindsets and future society. After graduating, Emily's career took a change of course when she rounded the globe on the record-breaking bio-fuelled boat, Earthrace. What she encountered on this trip changed everything. Emily has since been driving change, organising the world record community-led waste clean-up scheme in the South Pacific, and trawling for microplastics through the Arctic Northwest Passage.
